Of Note:

Taiko drummers were a hit during the Dia de los Ninos celebration. They played outside and were loud enough to be heard around town. As hoped people heard the music and came to check it out. Not only was the music impressive as were the musicians themselves but during the show they include learning and especially the importance of the library.

Couple from Plano, TX came in to research where their "people" were from.
Helped them with books in our collection as well as information about the archives.
